

Associate Professor or Professor, Public Health / Health Education and Promotion Oklahoma State University

School of Community Health Sciences, Counseling and Counseling Psychology

Rank: Associate Professor or Professor

Anticipated Start Date: August 2022

The Health Education and Promotion program, housed in the College of Education and Human Sciences at Oklahoma State University, is seeking qualified applicants for the position of Associate Professor/Professor and Joan Donelson Jacques Endowed Professor of Health Promotion. The successful applicant will join a collaborative team of faculty who work with and mentor our cadre of undergraduate students and graduate students (MS and PhD). This position reports to the Head of the School of Community Health Sciences, Counseling and Counseling Psychology.

The program is seeking a forward-thinking leader who will build on the breadth and strength of its undergraduate and graduate programs and educational model while inspiring collaborative relationships both within and outside the university. The candidate must demonstrate a deep commitment to and experience in diversity, research, developing and maintaining a strong curriculum, obtaining external funding, inter-professional and collaborative education, and progressive approaches to public health education and practice. The program is currently in the self-study phase of accreditation as a Standalone Baccalaureate Program with the Council on Education for Public Health (CePH). The candidate should have familiarity with national accreditation through CePH.

The position is located on the picturesque main campus in Stillwater, Oklahoma and provides the advantage of living in a large town of just under 50,000. Stillwater has a recent ranking as one of America's safest cities and provides a combination of large city amenities and the charm of a smaller community, including affordable housing, and excellent schools.

Oklahoma State University is a comprehensive land-grant institution of higher education dedicated to scholarship, teaching and service with an enrollment of more than 22,000 students. Information regarding the College of Education and Human Sciences may be found at <https://education.okstate.edu> For more information about the School of Community Health Sciences, Counseling and Counseling Psychology, please see <https://education.okstate.edu/departments-programs/community-health-sciences-counseling-psychology/index.html>

QUALIFICATIONS: Individuals seeking this position must possess the following: (1) a doctorate in public health, health education, health promotion, or related field; (2) experience that would meet the requirements for appointment at rank of Associate Professor or Professor; (3) record of extramural funding and community partnerships; and (4) commitment to diversity and social justice. In addition, the candidate must show evidence of leadership, service, teaching, scholarship, and research, as well as program accreditation and program assessment experience.

SALARY: Commensurate with experience and qualifications.

APPLICATION INFORMATION: The process of reviewing applications will begin December 1 and will continue until a successful candidate is selected. Applications should include: a letter of application, curriculum vitae, two-page statement of qualifications (including comments regarding current and future research pursuits), and the names and contact information of three professional references.
